

Excerpt from Newspaper

Pretty Donna Gearing is the country's first woman Exorcist.

Donna is one of a string of UK psychics who are enjoying a surge of interest in the paranormal on the back of the hit US telly show Supernatural.

Thousands of Brits are being inspired by the show's sexy spooksters, Sam and Dean Winchester - played by Jared Padalecki, 23 and Jensen Ackles 27. And increasing numbers of fans are desperate to sign up for one of Donna's ghost-hunting trips.

Evidence

Spirit chaser Donna, 34 from New Romney, Kent started up her company Ghost Search UK to "clean" haunted houses of ghosts. Donna says: "I have been able to see, hear and sense spirits since I was Just six-years old. At that time I thought it was normal and everyone could do it!"

Donna tried to ignore her "gift" for years, but then decided to tackle it head on. She explains: "I went to a medium and she told me I would have to master this gift or it would master me. That's when I started to explore it more and I set up Ghost Search. I wanted to get evidence to show what I was feeling was real." And Donna's work can get all-too real, as she tries to rid houses, hotels and pubs of their unwanted visitors. She explains: "The low entities are horrible. They are spirits who murdered, raped or abused in their lives and who have chosen to be 'earth-bound'. "They're evil and don't want to go on beyond earth, usually because they're scared of the retribution they might face. But if they've outstayed their earthly welcome they have to go, it's as simple as that. It's a very emotional experience. There are times when I've been left crying. To see lost children reunited with their mothers, fathers or family is amazing. But it can also be very dangerous. One time a spirit entered me, which feels completely draining. You have to be careful - they can kill you because the force can bring on heart failure, but that's the excitement I like."

From the Daily Star - 24th February 2006